

FARMERS SHOW WILLINGNESS TO AID WAR OUTPUT

Farmers and their wives and interested businessmen from Adams, York and Carroll counties jam-packed the auditorium of the Hanover junior high school, Friday evening, for a highly successful Farm Mobilization Day rally at which farm problems were discussed in relation to the war effort.

A group of experts made up of War Board chairmen and county agents from the three participating counties, Selective Service representatives and state leaders in agriculture work answered questions from the audience that filled every seat and stood in the rear of the auditorium and in adjoining corridors.

The farmers assembled for the Hanover session Friday evening left no doubt in the minds of the "experts" and the five Hanover organizations that sponsored the rally that they are ready to "do their part" in the production of the "food for freedom" that is going to win the war and write the peace.

Chief speaker was James E. Walker, state War Board chairman. In his opening address he told the throng that "this is the people's war, everybody is involved and all must make drastic adjustments in their ordinary ways of life."

He continued: "The adjustments may seem inequitable as compared with some of your neighbors but the whole program has been planned on a national scope. You must remember, too, that we have no precedent for handling many of the problems in this war, so that trial and error method must be used."

He stressed the importance of increased production from the farms of the nation. Increases of more than 100 per cent must be made in some food crops, he stated, and explained that all feed crops are to be increased in this area with the exception of wheat. Prospects are "bright," he said, for farmers to get all the nitrogen they need for this increased production program.

Pictures Shown

Slides and motion pictures were used by John O. Pepper, extension entomologist from State College, in the course of his talk on the European corn borer which became an important problem in this area last year for the first time. He listed rules for its control but said little can be accomplished by individual effort and that community cooperation is necessary. The borer may attack any vegetation that has pithy stalks, he asserted, and urged farmers to plow down, grind up or in some way use before May 1 the fodder of corn attacked by the borers. Fifty-six varieties of hybrid corn have been developed, Mr. Pepper said, but none is resistant to the borer in this section.

Majors Hartman and Dodge, from the state Selective Service office, answered questions connected with the operation of the Selective Service act and deferments for farm labor.

The meeting lasted about three hours. It was sponsored by the Hanover Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the junior and senior Chambers of Commerce of that place. Officers of those organizations were in the corridors to welcome the farmers and to help handle the questions during the discussion period.

Milk Price Boost Awaits OPA Action

Harrisburg, Jan. 16 (AP)—Prices of fluid milk delivered to doorsteps of consumers in seven more Pennsylvania milk marketing areas will increase one cent a quart Feb. 1 unless the OPA declines to permit price changes approved by Governor James.

The Pennsylvania Milk Control commission announced yesterday that orders for the areas had been issued, boosting prices in five areas from 14 to 15 cents a quart, and in two others, from 13 to 14 cents.

The increased price, the commission stated, is "practically all passed on to the producer, except for an allowance for commission on milk routes provided in labor contracts," adding that the price changes were designed primarily to maintain the necessary supply of milk "that will be so vitally needed."

The new prices, the order explained, are effective Feb. 1 unless superseded by orders from some war emergency board, the OPA being requested to take prompt action to permit the changes.

Areas in which retail milk prices for home delivery were raised to 15 cents a quart are: One-A, Philadelphia suburban; nine, Johnstown-Altoona; 13, Williamsport, Sayre-Athens; 14, Lancaster; 15, Reading-Berks and to 14 cents a quart; central marketing area 10, and statewide area 11.

Seventy-seven postal employees in 22 Adams county postoffices used an average of 32.3 per cent of their pay to purchase War Bonds and Stamps, according to figures announced today by Charles A. Williams, Gettysburg postmaster and chairman of the bond and stamp sales among postmasters and postal employees in this county.

Only three postal employees in the county did not participate in bond and stamp purchases last month. The Gettysburg office led all the rest in percentage of payroll devoted to bond and stamp purchases with a record of 66 per cent. In the local post office, which has the largest staff of any in the county, the staff spent 32.6 per cent of its pay for bonds and stamps.

DRAFT CHANGE HELPS FARMERS

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—An agreement by administrative officials to liberalize draft deferments for essential farm labor was welcomed by farm state senators today as a helpful approach toward removal of a major obstacle to all-out food production for war.

A new regulation for local Selective Service boards lowering the production requirements heretofore demanded for an agricultural worker's classification as an essential jobholder was promised immediately at a conference yesterday of farm senators, manpower and agriculture officials.

As spokesman for the group, Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) said the chief result of the conference was agreement by Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower commission and Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, to consider producers of as few as eight war units eligible for deferment in some areas.

Previously Selective Service had set a standard of 16 units for determining of farm workers. One war unit of production is the number of crop acres of the number of livestock that require approximately the same amount of labor, exclusive of seasonal peak labor periods, as is necessary to keep one cow.

He and Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) and other members of the Senate Agriculture committee agreed that higher farm prices, a return of farm labor already drafted into the armed forces, greater priorities on farm machinery and inclusion of labor costs in a new parity standard also is needed to meet food production goals.

MINE WALKOUT GROWS DESPITE WAR BOARD RULE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP)—

Thirty-eight hundred men hitherto not on strike joined the 18-day-old wildcat walkout of Pennsylvania anthracite miners today, despite a War Labor Board ultimatum directing 10,000 to 17,000 other strikers to return to their jobs immediately.

The new strikers, members of three insurgent locals of the United Mine Workers, adopted a resolution four days ago declaring they would go out unless a 50-cent a month increase in the union's dues were eliminated by January 15.

Earlier today UMW leaders—both insurgent and loyal—had said they anticipated the strikers would go back to work Monday in compliance with the War Labor Board ultimatum, which directed them to submit their grievances—including a demand for a $2 a day wage bonus—to processes provided in their working contract.

War Production Endangered

The War Labor Board said earlier this week that unless the walkout ended it would use all the power at its command to compel resumption of production. The statement was taken as a strong indication that if necessary the Board would ask President Roosevelt to seize the strike-bound mines in the name of the government.

WLB said the walkout had endangered the prosecution of the war by creating a hard coal shortage throughout the northeast. Spokesmen who earlier said they expected the other strikers to return to work, emphasizing that only the membership could decide whether to heed the WLB order.

The board's order represented a victory for shaggy-haired John L. Lewis over thousands of miners revolting against his leadership. The miners had asked the board to negotiate their demands for a $2 a day wage bonus and their protest against a 50-cents a month union dues increase. Lewis, in a defiant speech, told the board at a hearing yesterday that it had no authority to act in either argument.

Chairman William H. Davis announced the board's decision after a 15-minute executive session following the hearing. He said:

"If you have grievances, you can take them up according to the terms of the contract, and if that contract does not provide for final determination of the issue, the next step is through this board."

One strike leader, Gordon Roberts, vice president of a local, said here "we will have to await the report of our president before deciding our step." The president, William Salinski, attended the hearing.

Two Fines Levied In School Absence Cases

Charges brought by Franklin township school district officials against two parents for allowing their children to be absent illegally from the township schools resulted in fines for the parents in the office of Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore, Friday evening.

Glen Shultz, Orrtanna R. D., was fined $2 and the costs after a hearing for allowing his daughter, Catherine, to be absent illegally on dates in September, November and December. Sherman Speelman, Gettysburg R. 3, pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was given a similar sentence.

The warrants in the cases were issued by Justice Basehore and served by Constable M. E. Freed of Franklin township.

Shaull of Mechanicsburg, $2,500, and William Millard of Harrisburg, $1,000, the last three being accused with conspiracy to defraud the United States.

Frank Deardorff Married 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Deardorff, 200 West Middle street, are receiving friends and relatives informally at their home today in celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Deardorff was the former Mary Gerlach. The wedding took place on January 16, 1893, with the late Rev. J. R. Hutchison, then pastor of the Gettysburg United Brethren church, officiating. The attendants were the late Mrs. Harry T. Stauffer, a sister of Mrs. Deardorff, and J. Price Oyler, York street.

Mr. and Mrs. Deardorff have spent the last 40 years at their present residence with the exception of a three-year period from 1932-1935 when they resided on a fruit farm, near Mummansburg. The property known as the Luther Deardorff fruit farm, was Mr. Deardorff's birthplace. When Mr. Deardorff sold the property to Luther Baltzley in 1935, Mr. and Mrs. Deardorff returned to their Gettysburg home. For a number of years Mr. Deardorff was in business here as a dealer in contractors' supplies. He retired in 1935.

Eight children were born to the couple. Seven of them are living. They are Erle R. Deardorff, Mrs. Helen L. Price, Mrs. William Shover and Miss Anna G. Deardorff, all of Gettysburg; Mrs. Edward H. Snyder, 3rd, Hanover; Franklin R. Deardorff, Hanover, and Mrs. H. Russell Grove, Gardners. There are 10 grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell Grove, married on Mrs. Grove's parents' 43rd wedding anniversary, are marking their seventh wedding anniversary today.

School Directors Plan Convention

Routine matters in connection with preparations for the annual convention of the Adams county school directors to be held at Littlestown on January 29 were handled at a special meeting of the Adams county board of school directors which was held Friday evening in the office of the county superintendent of schools in the court house.

The formal letter of notification for the convention was approved and Luther E. Jacobs and Zeal R. Peters, vice presidents of the county board, were named to the convention ticket committee.

I.O.O.F. WILL HONOR WILDEY

At the regular meeting of Gettysburg Lodge No. 124, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, next Tuesday evening a special program will be given in observance of the founder of the order in the United States. The observance will be for members of the fraternity only and will follow the regular business session of the subordinate lodge.

The person whose memory is to be honored is Thomas Wildey, who was born in London, England, January 15, 1782, and affiliated with the English branch of the order on maintaining his majority.

Migrating to this country as a young man, and missing meetings of the order, he set about locating members of the order who had preceded him, and upon finding the requisite number, applied to the parent lodge in his native country for a charter. On April 26, 1819, he instituted the first lodge of the order—Washington lodge, of Baltimore. This lodge is still in existence. An appropriate program, to be given entirely by members of the local lodge, has been prepared for the occasion.

All members of the various lodges of the county, as well as other Odd Fellows who may find it convenient, are invited to attend.

Reds Retake 30 Towns; Open New Rostov Threat

Tripolitanian Front Active Bulletins

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—The British army was reported today to have struck out again from the east in attacks which the Axis described as an attempt to sweep around Marshal Rommel's forces at Wadi Zem Zem, perhaps in a renewed drive toward Tripoli.

The German and Italian high commands said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's encircling maneuver was nipped off with the loss of 35 Allied tanks.

The British for the first time after days of lull announced land operations in which casualties were inflicted upon Rommel's forces "in several sectors." The Cairo communiqué, however, described this only as increased patrol activity.

Overhead in Tripolitania Allied air forces reported encountering negligible opposition, while in Tunisia American and RAF fighters and bombers underscored their growing supremacy by downing 23 Axis planes in a single night and day.

The quickened pace of fighting in Tripolitania was expected in London to have an important bearing on the Tunisian land campaign.

British observers expressed the belief that action by the Eighth Army would be followed in short order by a livening of action in Tunisia. The Allies apparently have established over the whole front the air superiority which would be the first step toward a ground offensive.

The German description of the fighting in Tripolitania suggested a repetition of the tactics the Eighth Army used to collapse the Axis defense line at El Aghaila where Rommel's defenses were flanked and his troops retreated barely in time to escape entrapment.

SHUTZ HOLDINGS BRING $52,000

Personal property disposed of Fridtjof at the trustee's sale of H. W. Shutz properties at Cross Keys totaled approximately $7,500 and sent the gross amount of the sale receipts above $52,000. Bidding was lively for both the real estate and the personal property.

The inn property was turned over to its purchaser, Charles H. Bittinger, Berwick township, at 10 o'clock this morning, while the other tracts will be transferred after the district court has confirmed the sale.

The next procedure is to petition the district court for confirmation of the sale. There is a 10-day period following the filing of the petition for confirmation during which exceptions may be taken.

Distribution of the proceeds of the sale to the creditors appeared today to be distant with the determination of expenses involved and a trustee's accounting yet to be handled.

Allied Planes Give Europe Another "Night Of Terror"

(By The Associated Press)

The Red Army's victorious countermarch assumed land rush proportions today as Soviet headquarters listed the recapture of 30 more towns in the Caucasus and middle Don, and reported a sharp new threat to the great German base at Rostov.

Already endangered by a west-bound column only 60 miles away, Rostov was newly menaced by Col.-Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's middle Don army which cut the Rostov-Moscow railway at Glubokaya and reached a point 90 miles northeast of the key German citadel.

Hitler's Crucial 'Strong Points'

Russian offensives from the Gulf of Finland to the Caucasus threaten assaults on strong points which are vital to the Nazis. Reading from north to south are (1) the Leningrad front; (2) Smolensk; (3) Kursk; (4) Kharkov; (5) Rostov; and (6) Krasnodar. Swedish reports told of a new Russian campaign (A) to break the siege of Leningrad, and new Red gains (B) were reported in the Caucasus. Russian troops gained the shaded territory since their offensive began Nov. 19.

Battle For Rostov About To Begin

(By The Associated Press)

Russia's triumphant armies, advancing on a 25-mile front, swept back into the Donets valley today, closed a semi-circle around the great German base at Rostov. Front-line reports indicated that the battle for Rostov itself was about to begin, with the Russians preparing to storm across the Donets river—last natural barrier to the city—in a climactic drive to cut off perhaps 500,000 German soldiers in southern Russia.

Simultaneously, black news for the Axis came from almost every front in the global conflict:

WESTERN AIR WAR—Allied warplanes gave Hitler's "European fortress" another night of terror, blasting the Nazi U-boat base at Lorient, France, for the second night in a row, and pounding targets in western Germany, Holland and Belgium.

The British Air ministry said big fires were left raging in the dock area at Lorient as the RAF's big bombers struck in bright moonlight.

5th Successive Night of Raids

Other RAF planes, striking in force, shot up at least 15 railway engines along the Nazi-occupied coast, strafed trains near Hazebrouck, Belgium, and Ypres, France, and bombed a German airbase.

It was the RAF's fifth successive night bombardment of the continent and the 10th this month.

NEW GUINEA—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that American and Australian troops, attacking the last pocket of resistance by survivors of a 15,000 man Japanese invasion army on the Papua peninsula, had broken through and destroyed a section of enemy forward positions on Sanananda Point.

Gen. MacArthur said 152 Japanese troops who attempted to stop the advance were killed.

New Attacks on Lae

In upper New Guinea, Allied planes drove home new attacks on enemy strongholds at Lae, Madang and Finschhafen, and ranged far out over the south seas to hit the Japanese on Maktau Island in the Timor group; at Cape Sena, New Ireland, and at Gasmata and Rabaul, New Britain.

BURMA—American and British warplanes blasted the Japanese at both ends of conquered Burma. U. S. Army fliers operating from bases in China heavily assaulted the Japanese supply base at Bhamo, in northern Burma, dive-bombing Irrawaddy river craft loaded with supplies and machine-gunning other targets.

All the U. S. planes returned safely after destroying two big Japanese barges, damaging a third and blowing up a tug.

RAF planes, flying from India, attacked Japanese shipping on the Chindwin and Irrawaddy rivers and raided the Magwe airdrome in lower Burma.

British headquarters also reported the first land activity on the Burma front in several days, announcing that patrols of Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's army beat off a Japanese attack near Rathedagan, 25 miles north of the enemy base at Akyab on the Bay of Bengal coast.

INDIA—Calcutta's anti-aircraft defenses rang up a 100 per cent score during the night when three

NUNS PROVIDE HOSPITAL ROOM

With U. S. Forces in Tunisia, Jan. 12 (Delayed) (AP)—White-clad nuns who operate a hospital in a small French town along the central Tunisian front have proved true angels of mercy to many wounded and ill American and British soldiers.

When American medical men approached them for permission to use a room in the hospital for diagnosis and emergency treatment, the nuns responded by turning over the entire first floor.

"Their kindness has helped us save lives," said Capt. Gustave Stockness of Elizabeth, New Jersey, commander of the medical unit. "Ordinarily we have to set up in tents."

The operating room with blacked out windows enables the doctors to handle emergency cases at all hours—even when enemy planes fly overhead.

The nuns also provided laundry equipment for the soldiers and paid for them to set up a delousing unit.

Soldiers journey 15 miles or more to the hospital for hot showers, the rarest of luxuries for a front-line fighter.

CAESAR USED BLITZ METHOD

Pittsburgh, Jan. 16 (AP)—Latin students at the Winchester-Thurston school are learning in a streamlined course that Hitler's tactics are "old stuff"—they say Caesar used the blitz method 2,000 years ago.

Their instructor, Anna Mary Gerwig, has taken war headlines from the daily papers and adapted them to Caesar's wars. And the students like it.

"Teaching Latin, especially Caesar's Gallic wars, can be made a truly vital story during this period of global warfare," Miss Gerwig said. "The fact that Caesar was a dictator calls to mind a modern dictator named Hitler. Their techniques were surprisingly the same and when these similarities are pointed out to the students they really learn it."

The students have found these similarities: Caesar started his conquests on small, unarmed nations; his march against little Helvetia was eased by Orgetorix, the quelling of the ancients; the stubborn Helvetians burned villages and orain fields before the advancing Romans—ABC "scorched earth" policy.

To take Britain, Caesar first sent scores of "lieutenants" to investigate conditions on the English coast—ancient "fifth columnists."

The first commando raid on Britain took place when 10,000 Roman "Rangers" landed in low-bottomed barges on the southern beaches of England. In three weeks they had to withdraw because the Britons made things too hot. Caesar never completely conquered the island, say the Latin students.

Caesar had a "Magnet line" along the Rhine, stakes like modern tank traps to impede advancing forces and even draft evaders. Yes, "history repeats itself," the students say.

With money plentiful let's think of the butcher and baker, and druggist; our restaurants and hotels; clothing and shoe stores; tailors and grocers; garages and filling stations; confectionery stores and many others. A dollar here and there, that formerly went out of town, may tide these fine merchants through the war era."

A new moving picture, "Tennessee Johnson," that had its premiere in New York this week may be of interest to a number of Gettysburgians who admire the accomplishments of the late Thaddeus Stevens, a resident of Gettysburg more than one hundred years ago.

Lionel Barrymore plays the role of Thaddeus Stevens and Van Heflin plays the role of Andrew Johnson, Lincoln's vice president who succeeded to the presidency after Lincoln's assassination.

The film covers the life of Johnson, taking, according to one critic—"some long steps from high point to high point, beginning with his young manhood and ending with his return to the Senate from Tennessee following expiration of a term as President. It shows his education by the girl who became his wife, his first understanding of the Constitution and his early championship of rights of the underprivileged, his stand on the Union side against his Southern associates, his part in the war, his association with Lincoln, his occupancy of the White House following Lincoln's death and, for the big scene of the picture, the impeachment proceedings which failed by one vote to oust him from the Presidency. It is a long story in fact and in the telling, but it is strong in interest and in its appeal to Americans.

Van Heflin's portrayal of Johnson is a compelling performance, as are those of Lionel Barrymore as Thaddeus Stevens, his political adversary, of Ruth Hussey as Mrs. Johnson and of many others in the large cast."

SCARSDALE
JACK
of the Flying Tigers

He had a lot to live for.

Ask his father. Or ask the kids who knew him—his Scout troop—or his classmates at Rensselaer Polytechnic.

Ask his widow.

Scarsdale Jack, Squadron Leader John V. Newkirk on the Flying Tigers' roster, blasted 28 Japs out of the sky before they got him.

He gave all a man can give of courage, guts, gallantry, the will to fight and keep on fighting. Not 10% ... but everything! His life.

You're being asked only to pledge 10% of your income, a dime of each dollar for War Bonds to give all the Scarsdale Jacks in Navy blue and Army O. D. and Marine forest green the planes, machine guns, bombs, bullets, torpedoes, tanks, and ships and every other weapon they need to give the Herrenvolk, the "sons of heaven," and the road-company Romans the bellyful of steel they asked for.

These men who are fighting for your homes, your children, your future, your freedom aren't stopping at 10%.

That's all you're asked for—but why stop at 10%—if you can do better?

BUY WAR BONDS

everybody at least 10% every pay day

Now look at the selfish reasons for buying your share of WAR BONDS

War Bonds, first of all, are for winning the war. Without that what future will any of us have?

But beyond that there are many advantages that make a 10% pledge add up to solid business sense. You're actually doing yourself a favor by investing that 10%—or more if you can—in War Bonds.

ican. It means, simply, that if it comes, your money is worth next to nothing. Systematic savings in War Bonds by each and every American is one of our major protections against inflation.

You get back in ten years $25 for every $18.75 you put in.

They are the direct obligation of the United States Government.

You can get back every cent you put in after sixty days if you suddenly need money.

You get a handsome interest, 2.9% compounded — 1/3 more money back at maturity than you put in.

Inflation is the dreaded threat of every American. It means, simply, that if it comes, your money is worth next to nothing. Systematic savings in War Bonds by each and every American is one of our major protections against inflation.

Flattery is often a traffic of mutual meanness, where although both parties intend deception, neither are deceived.—Colton.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

SACRIFICE

Now off they go with life in hand,
With all the years that make its span
And give them to their native land
For God and for their fellow man.

In one brave hour for right are spent
The books they'd pen, the fame they'd gain
Or what they might with time invent
Or what with skill they might attain.

Oh, who can count the final price
The brave for freedom gladly pay
Or measure what they sacrifice
Who dare to give their lives away?

'Tis not within man's power to trace
What might have brightened their careers
Had they, like us, at slower pace
From day to day lived out the years.

But this we know, the young, the bold
Who dare to die at freedom's call
Bring everything the years may hold
And in one moment spend it all.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

CARRY ON

One of the great voices in the contest for American freedom was that of Thomas Paine. His greatest services have all too long been unclaimed. To read his "The American Crisis" is to be inspired with renewed faith for the tasks of today. It was then—in 1776—that he wrote:

"These are the times that try men's souls: The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman."

In the same essay are to be found these words: "I love the man that can smile in trouble, that can gather strength from distress, and grow brave by reflection. 'Tis the business of little minds to shrink, but he whose heart is firm, and whose conscience approves his conduct, will pursue his principles unto death."

The struggle for human freedom has been an age long one. The pages of our histories, and the stories of our great men and women are stained with the blood of the brave—those who did not give up, those who did not flinch, nor fear death, but whose hearts did hold firm—men and women who did Carry On to the end. It is to them that we owe the courage of our day, and from their example we appeal to Almighty God that we may not fail their deeds nor their memory.

A mother has written me that her only boy—but 18 years of age—has just enlisted and gone to camp for his training. He said that his "conscience" would not let him do otherwise. And all along so many of us have been deriding "careless" and "unthinking" youth. Inbred freedom always thinks, whether in youth or man!

I can figure out no reason, in a free country, for anyone to complain of any sacrifice that is essential to preserve this precious thing of freedom. The fighting and dying in Russia, Africa, China, and the "down under" lands of the Pacific, do not think so. Their thoughts are beyond their day. Their very blood is enriching the soil of the world that freedom may become a universal blessing where they fight and fall.

Early Showdown Looms On 48-Hour Work Week Issue

LABOR PROBLEMS OCCUPY LEADERS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Confronted by five different phases of the wartime manpower worry, official Washington concentrated today on labor problems with only sketchy sidelong glances at squabbles over Edward J. Flynn's diplomatic appointment and the board of economic warfare's shipment of truck tires to South America.

Revival of congressional effort to return the 48-hour work-week loomed to tighten tension in labor circles which had some relief as once-rebellious local union leaders returned to the Pennsylvania coal fields to urge anthracite miners to comply with a War Labor Board order and end a wildcat strike which threatens the nation's war production.

Farm state senators welcomed an agreement by agriculture and manpower officials to relax draft deferment regulations for essential farm labor. Federal agencies were reported to be setting a national pace in the War Manpower commission plan to employ physically handicapped workers, and a War Production Board director of procurement policy warned military and federal procurement officers not to overestimate labor market considerations in placing war contracts.

As the local union representatives returned to Pennsylvania, they left bushy-browed John L. Lewis solidly braided at the helm of their United Mine Workers international—his stand on the strike supported by the board he defied and the mine leaders who defied him. And the issues behind the strike—said to have cost the country some 500,000 tons of anthracite already—remained unsettled, not to be ruled on by the board until work is resumed and all contract methods of settlement exhausted.

Then he started complaining of lower oil mileage which is normal after carbon removal. Again he was told that the job needed time in which to "take." When a little carbon forms around the piston tops again the oil mileage will be normal.

Perfect For Light Oil
Wartime motoring restrictions are calling for all kinds of adjustments in our way of motor life. Latest is the need for using very light engine oil. We've always known that if oil is very light the engine will start as easily in winter as in summer, but we've also hesitated to go too far with the idea because such oil naturally burns off more freely at high speed. Now we don't have this latter condition to contend with. Most driving is done right around home with the engine never warming enough to break down winter oil. You can use break-in oils effectively to insure maximum lubrication of bearings and cylinder walls in cold weather. Since short runs gum up the engine any oil additives that will help offset such gumming will be effective. It looks as if we have a real opportunity this winter to prove the real worth of light lubrication.

"This is the time of year when it pays to check the oil level before you start up the engine in the morning. Yes, I know it seems foolish to check oil where you're not going anywhere in particular and when you haven't used more than a ration coupon of gas all week. But if you check the level you may be surprised to find it is above the full mark. This means either of two things, and sometimes both. Dilution from excessive churning and cold engine operation is one. Water in the oil is the other. The latter is especially risky if it involves leakage of cool-

Panama Defenses Kept In Shape

A Coast Gun Emplacement, Somewhere in Panama (Delayed) (AP)—With a near-deafening crash, a shell weighing more than a ton and costing $3,000 roars from the mouth of a giant gun and heads toward a target some 20 miles at sea off the entrance of the Panama canal.

In rapid-fire order, four more shells scream seaward from this jungle emplacement to complete a salvo of this largest type of defense gun in the Caribbean area.

It is routine firing practice but at the same time proof of the working of the canal's key defenses.

Complete scores cannot be revealed, but almost immediately observers at sea were able to report three consecutive hits on a target towed behind an Army tug. The gun crew of Sgt. Michael J. Petrowski, of Mound City, Pa., was "hot" this day.

While this firing is called routine, the Coast Guard guns of all calibers are constantly at work, and the shipping news columns in the local papers bristle with warnings daily to vessels to avoid target firing areas.

Cut Out That Ping
If you think that ping is a harmless corollary of lower octane gas I'm sorry to report that you have trouble ahead. One of the sad results of ping is valve burning. Detonation is something of a wild rise in compression, accompanied by greater heat of combustion. The valves bear the brunt of this along with the pistons and connecting rod bearings. Valves especially are damaged by detonation of they also do not seat well, if their springs have lost compression, if clearances are too small or if varnish and gums collect on the valve stem.

Repairs Have To "Take"
If there is anything to be learned from the letters that pour in on the subject of keeping cars in the best possible condition for wartime service it is the lack of appreciation for the fact that repairs, like vaccinations, need to "take."

A recent case will explain this perfectly: J. M. ordered a ring job. To aid the engine in breaking in, and to check stalling, the service man adjusted for a richer than normal mixture and advised the owner to use a little engine oil in with the gasoline. So far so good. But the owner kept away from the shop and appeared to give no thought to the need for further advice. Two months later he came back to complain that the engine was knocking badly. The engine still was adjusted for a rich mixture and he continued using oil in the gas. Penalty for this was a carbon removal job.

Then he started complaining of lower oil mileage which is normal after carbon removal. Again he was told that the job needed time in which to "take." When a little carbon forms around the piston tops again the oil mileage will be normal.

Perfect For Light Oil
Wartime motoring restrictions are calling for all kinds of adjustments in our way of motor life. Latest is the need for using very light engine oil. We've always known that if oil is very light the engine will start as easily in winter as in summer, but we've also hesitated to go too far with the idea because such oil naturally burns off more freely at high speed. Now we don't have this latter condition to contend with. Most driving is done right around home with the engine never warming enough to break down winter oil. You can use break-in oils effectively to insure maximum lubrication of bearings and cylinder walls in cold weather. Since short runs gum up the engine any oil additives that will help offset such gumming will be effective. It looks as if we have a real opportunity this winter to prove the real worth of light lubrication.

"This is the time of year when it pays to check the oil level before you start up the engine in the morning. Yes, I know it seems foolish to check oil where you're not going anywhere in particular and when you haven't used more than a ration coupon of gas all week. But if you check the level you may be surprised to find it is above the full mark. This means either of two things, and sometimes both. Dilution from excessive churning and cold engine operation is one. Water in the oil is the other. The latter is especially risky if it involves leakage of coolant through the cylinder head gasket. Some water may simply be from condensation."

Cut Down The Lag
Many drivers who realize it is a matter of efficiency to get through the gears quickly confuse the issue and make the serious mistake of racing through the gears. Thus they accelerate too freely and build up speed which cannot be utilized to good advantage. The trick is merely to get from one gear to another without delay. That's quite a different matter. One is wasteful; the other highly efficient. What you want to do is avoid the error of losing momentum between shifts. It is just a matter of speeding up your operation of the clutch and gear shift lever. If you make a good job of this it is possible to go from low to high efficiently.

Keep These In Mind
If your car is equipped with any kind of vacuum booster device to operate the clutch or the gear shift be sure to look for the filter over its air intake and keep it clean. This will be a wire mesh affair like the car's regular air cleaner, but smaller.

One of the little known hard working parts of the car is the return spring on the accelerator. It is almost constantly in action when the car is driven. Should it fail, the engine will race widely until switched off, and you'll have trouble making a makeshift arrangement to close the throttle. If the car is fairly new carry an extra spring for good luck. If old, better install the new one now.

The Remedy Worked
A very good friend of this column has reported that a simple remedy for hard gear shifting has worked out in good style. He first complained of difficulty getting into low and second. High wasn't so bad. On the surface this looked like a case of trouble with the shift lock which, working between the shifter rails in the transmission, keeps the gears in mesh. Before going to such trouble, however, I urged the owner to drain off the gears, put in some gum solvent lubricant and drive the car around the block carefully, shifting several times. He found that the solvent drained off a quantity of heavy lube which should never have been in the gears. Now all's well.

Thanks for this help to other readers who may be similarly troubled.

Still With Us
They're not giving as much trouble as formerly, but those small wires inside the distributor may easily break inside their insulation. In that event the engine may cut out altogether, or more likely run in fits and starts. Breakage is due to the action of the vacuum spark control which causes constant flexing of the wire. I have seen many cases where failure to start was due to a broken wire not letting current through. It's worth while to jiggle the wire in event of starting trouble that doesn't yield to the usual remedies.

Check And Double Check
The new apprentice may mean well enough but while he's learning better keep an eye out for possible errors. Of course he'll be entrusted merely to do the frills in service work, but a friend of mine can vouch for the fact that even a trill can lead to a lot of trouble when not handled properly.

On his way home from the service station this particular owner noticed that the engine got quite hot and that a lot of anti-freeze went out the overflow. That night he studied the instruction book so as to be ready to take out the thermostat the next morning. Finding nothing wrong with this gadget he put it back into the cylinder head and started filling up with water only to discover that the drain at the bottom of the radiator had been left open.

It's A Motor Question
Q Please advise if pulling the choke out when the engine is stopped can flood it when you go to start again. R. O. B.

A The engine would not be over-choke if it were not started again for an hour or so. But choking on switching off the engine is bad practice. It increases crankcase diluent and washes protective oil off the cylinder walls.

Q I have been advised to remove the electrolyte from the battery of my car when storing it. Or should I store it wet? J. L. B.

A Dry storage should be resorted to only when it is planned to rebuild the battery before using it again. If the battery is in good condition simply store it wet, but be sure that it is checked periodically and given a charge as needed. A battery service station is the most logical place for such storage.

Q Is it entirely safe to straighten steering gear parts by heating them? D. N.

A It's entirely unsafe! Such parts should be "cold straightened." Heating them again weakens them.

Q I am using a compression gauge in testing the engine of my car. There seems to be two cylinders with low compression. The valves may be leaking but I am not sure. How can I make certain about this? C. F. L.

A First inject engine oil into the cylinders under consideration. If compression increases then the trouble is with the piston rings in those cylinders, not the valves. If, however, compression does not show a marked increase and is still below standard then the valves are not seating well.

Punxsutawney, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP)—The famous groundhog of Gobbler's Knob, who boasts such titles as the seer of seers, the peer of prognosticators, and the world's greatest weather forecaster, is suffering great loss of distinction due to the war.

Last year censorship restricted his prediction of whether there's six more weeks of winter or an early spring.

Now the 25 board members of the Chamber of Commerce have voted unanimously to cancel the groundhog day banquet scheduled Feb. 2 in honor of the seer's emergence from hibernation, an occasion of much fanfare here for more than a half-century.

Chapter 25 Call On Carmencita

Mary slung a tweed coat across her shoulders, took advantage of the fact that her mother was engaged in a telephone conversation to slip out to the garage, climb quickly into her car.

She didn't acknowledge even to herself that she intended to go straight to Carmencita's villa until she turned into the driveway leading to the house. There was just a slim chance that she might learn something to convince her either of Dan's safety—or his romance.

Carmencita showed her into the drawing room and while she called her maid, she motioned Mary to sit down, said something smoothly sibilant that Mary couldn't understand.

The stolid, unsmiling Lena arrived in due time—an interval during which the two girls sat smiling politely at each other exchanging little remarks that meant nothing, Mary thought with a smile, in any language.

"The Senorita says she is sorry she cannot speak your language to tell you how happy and how proud your visit makes her," Lena translated woodenly.

"Tell her, please, that it is I who am sorry not to speak her beautiful tongue," Mary replied courteously. And that was more truth than polite compliment, she added silently.

"Will you ask your mistress if she knows where I can leave a message for Lieutenant Sherman. I have an important telegram for him," she fabricated on impulse.

"From his Commanding Officer," "Lieutenant Sherman" Carmencita echoed. She hesitated a moment. Then, "Not No, Senorita" and to her maid a volume of emphatic Spanish.

"She doesn't know where Lieutenant Sherman is," Lena repeated indifferently. "She hasn't seen him since he was in the hospital."

That instant's hesitation had been long enough for Mary to be sure that Carmencita had been taken off guard. And her saying that she had not seen him since he left the hospital, proved that she was lying.

Mary was as sure of that as she had seen Dan with Carmencita only three days ago, passenger in her expensive car and—the thought came into bold relief now—that Carmencita was playing!

"Oh, I'm so sorry," Mary said calmly, rose to go. "I'd hoped you would know."

"I am distressed that I cannot help you," Carmencita apologized through Lena.

The Tip-Off

Mary tried vainly to think of something more to say, some excuse for prolonging her visit a little. Because she was sure Dan was here, or had been here. Nothing she could identify as sound logic convinced her. But something else—a hunch, a feeling that was inspired by Carmencita's manner, her too-solicitous charm. Even before her glance snagged on the stubby, wellcaked pipe in the elaborately carved ash tray, she was sure she'd stumbled onto some secret.

Never once during the next several moments that it took Mary to pave her way to the door with polite little apologies and thank-yous, did Carmencita betray the slightest anxiety. As cool as if she were really only concerned that Mary not trip on the dimly lit steps to the front entrance, she smiled and bowed and even waved gaily from the doorway as Mary drove away.

Her father wasn't in his office. He'd be back about five. It was nearly dinner time before she got her father on the telephone.

"I have to see you Dad. At once. It's terribly important."

"Come out to the hospital, then. I have an emergency appendectomy in half an hour, so hurry."

Fifteen minutes later, as Dr. Paul scrubbed up for his operation, Mary told him the whole story beginning with Carmencita's strange morning on the beach, Dan's mysterious role as "shadow," her own recent visit to the villa where Carmencita had denied seeing him—she even mentioned the familiar pipe.

"Hm," Her father mused thoughtfully. "Strange, all right. And I haven't liked this business of Sherman's disappearing. I think we must notify the authorities at once."

"But Daddy, what can we prove?" Mary asked.

"Let them prove it," he said promptly.

Hank Gorman listened carefully to Mary's story when, after a tedious half hour wait in his outer office, she finally got to him. When she finished, he reached for his desk phone, dialed a number.

"You be thinking up some excuse to call on Senorita de la Vega again, will you?" he said to Mary while waited for the call to go through. Then, into the mouthpiece, "Send Rowley up, will you?"

He replaced the receiver, reached for his hat. "You drive ahead and we'll follow. Maybe we can pick up some ideas if we see the place."

He smiled calmly and Mary was relieved, infinitely, to have transferred the burden of her anxiety to his broad, official shoulders.

Empty Coop

The police car followed her discreetly. Mary noticed that they stopped outside the entrance to the private roadway. When she looked back again, the two men had disappeared into the verdant orange groves lining either side of the road.

She had stopped the car in front of the villa before she thought of some excuse. Could accomplished Senorita de la Vega sing at the Christmas Party for the selectees who were leaving Santa Philippa?

A safe suggestion since Mary knew her mother was chairman of the Entertainment Committee and hadn't yet planned a program.

She ran quickly across the broad veranda, pulled at the heavy brass knocker. There was no answer.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

A thrilling story of the men who protect the forests is told in "The Forest Rangers," a technicolor picture which will be the attraction at the Majestic theatre Monday and Tuesday. Heading a superb cast are Fred MacMurray, Paulette Goddard, Susan Hayward, Albert Dekker, Lynn Overman and Eugene Palette.

WEDNESDAY

The story of witchcraft in modern dress and in a modern setting is one way of describing "I Married A Witch," the Rene Clair fantasy which is due for showing Wednesday at the Majestic Theatre thru United Artists release. The picture has a witch all right—but minus the pointed cap and frightening face—none other, in fact than the lovely, blonde Veronica Lake. And Veronica, it must be added, makes an enchanting witch with her hair still dressed in the same long, over-the-eye fashion. Frederic March plays opposite Miss Lake and is supported by an all-star cast.

Twenty-five turbulent years in the making—the world-shattering events of our time, and the history-

Mary waited briefly then knocked again, louder this time. Still no answer. She tried again. Not a sound, not a footstep from within the villa.

Mary stepped back, glanced up at the big studio widow. The heavy crimson draperies had been drawn. In fact, every curtain in the place was drawn. That seemed strange. It was a dark, dreary day not so much as a splinter of sunshine to be shut out anywhere.

She went back to the door, pounded vigorously. Even though Carmencita herself might be gone, there must surely be one of the three servants left on duty!

She went around to the garage. Carmencita's red car was gone. And so was the station wagon her maid-of-all-work drove into town for supplies.

Alarm gathering rapidly, Mary ran around to the side door opening onto the patio. Locked, of course. And there was no response to her knocking. The same was true at the back door. All around the house there wasn't a light, a voice, a footstep save Mary's own.

Carmencita had gone, Mary realized now. And it was no temporary absence! Some premonition told her that!

making personalities who perpetrated them come to life on the screen in "United We Stand," 20th Century-Fox's full length motion picture of the rise of the Axis and the War, and the subsequent awakening of the United Nations. This will be a special attraction in addition to the feature.

The film abounds in thrilling and eye-opening scenes. Shown in bold relief against the early post-World War I period are the striking, on-the-spot action shots of the Spanish Revolution, the invasion of Ethiopia, the over-running of Norway, the Low Countries and France. There are scenes to make the spine tingle; the miracle of Dunkerque, for instance, the tragic occupation of France, the signing-at-sea of the Atlantic Charter, the untold misery of the indomitable Chinese, and Russia's inspiring stand against the foe.

THURSDAY

"Eyes in the Night," a melodrama which has espionage for its theme, will play at the Majestic on Thursday. Edward Arnold, who plays the part of a blind detective, and his "seeing eye" dog upset the plans of Axis agents who seek to steal an inventor's plans for a new war device. Supporting Arnold in the cast are Ann Harding, Reginald Denny, Donna Reed, Allen Jennings and Horace McNally.

G. H. S. Downs Trojans For 4th Straight

SCORING SPREE IN LAST HALF NETS 33-17 WIN

After being held on almost even terms in the first half, the undefeated Gettysburg high school basketball team went on a scoring spree in the second half to gain its fourth straight victory Friday evening at Chambersburg by a 33-17 margin.

The victory was the second straight South Penn league decision for the defending champions and kept them in a deadlock with Hanover high for the southern division honors.

Once again the Maroons proved their efficiency from the foul line by bagging nine of 13 throws. Last week the team made good on 10 of 11 tries.

Lead Throughout

Coach Forney's lads led throughout although their margin was narrow in the first half. A goal by Fair and foul tosses by Sherman, Boehner and Sachs gave Gettysburg a 5-3 advantage in the first quarter, the Trojans scoring on a goal and foul by G. Leisher who took the scoring honors for the evening with 11 tries.

Continued close guarding kept the scoring low in the second period which found the Maroons leading 11-8. During that period March and Sherman netted double-deckers with Fair and Sherman connecting from the 15-foot mark. Leisher added three points for Chambersburg while Schellhase netted a twin-pointer.

Show Form

It was a much improved Maroon team that took the floor for the third period and the outcome was quickly sealed. Fair looped a pair of field goals and Sachs and March each tallied one. Sachs netted two free throws and Fair and Boehner made one each. The only points for Chambersburg came on a goal by McDonald. At the end of the third period the Maroons led 23-10.

Gettysburg increased its lead in the final period on goals by Fair, Boehner, Fissel, Sachs and March. Leisher looped a trio of goals and Schellhase a foul for the Schlichter-men.

Next Friday evening the Maroon quintet returns to its home court, meeting Delone Catholic high in a non-league contest.

Two Lightweights Spring Surprises

By SID FEDER

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Proving once again that fight odds-makers are the "craziest people," Joey Perkala, of Tamaqua, Pa., is just about eliminated from the laughable lightweight tournament today and California Jackie Wilson is just about ditto from Ray Robinson.

For little or no reason, the charitable betting wise-guys installed Ed Wilson a 1 to 4 favorite in his Madison Square Garden debut against Jake Lamotta last night. And California Jackie, generally regarded as one of the world's three ranking welterweights, obliged by dropping a ten-round decision to Bronx Jake, who made good use of a 16-pound weight edge.

Then, just to make it unanimous, the betting big-shots followed up by making Perkala a 5 to 12 choice over Ex-Featherweight Champ Chalky Wright. And the ancient chalk whacked Mexican Joey all around the premises to take another ten-round "Duke."

War Changes Physical Education In Schools

Harrisburg, Jan. 16 (AP)—A major adjustment in Pennsylvania high school administrative planning today was in prospect to meet the wartime physical education program envisioned by the U. S. Office of Education.

Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of Public Instruction, declared yesterday that under the program a minimum of five hours a week of high school study time will have to be devoted to physical training compared with the pre-war two or three hours weekly.

The new program, he said, is designed by the Federal authorities to develop strength, endurance and stamina among students.

A conference of selected school officials will meet here January 20 to study adjustments necessary in schools due to the war. Those who attend, will in turn instruct local school representatives at 16 area conferences at State Teachers colleges on January 25-28.

Game Commission To Probe Charges

Harrisburg, Jan. 16 (AP)—A committee of three Pennsylvania Game commissioners today was empowered with authority to investigate accusations made to the commission charging "irregularities" on the part of unidentified "members of the commission" and "employees."

The commission, in a resolution made public yesterday after two days of sessions, asserted "accusations have been made concerning the activities of certain members of the commission using and appropriating funds, property and labor of the commonwealth," and authorized an investigation.

The committee set up "to investigate these charges and make their recommendations to the commission" included Commissioners G. Ben Gipple of Harrisburg, E. E. Harwood of Hazleton and S. Harold Fisher of Huntingdon. They were given authority "to extend to and enlist the aid of the Department of Justice and the Pennsylvania police," in doing so.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Dodgers are going north for spring training at Bear Mountain, and we can't wait to see if anyone will upend the Brooklyn tradition by trying the ski jump—with or without snow. . . . At that, Branch Ritchey seems to have pulled one out of the hat by getting the use of the West Point field house for bad weather training. All the local clubs had their eyes on it but figured there wasn't a chance of getting onto a military reservation. . . . Every national motorcycle speed champion either is in the armed forces or serving as an instructor at Army camps and more than a quarter of the riding members of the American Motorcycle association are in uniform. . . . Eddie Gordon, the old Iowa and Olympic broad jumper, starts his 19th season of competition today carrying the colors of the Grand Street Boys association. Must be about time for him to switch to the grand old boys.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Will Connolly, San Francisco Chronicle: "Boxing, highly recommended by the military in this day, is good for the campus lads—more than any other sport we can name, including football. What this country needs is a few bloody noses. A bloody nose either frightens a man to death or makes him sore as hell, depending upon the man."

Pete Owens, the Texas speedster, was turned down by the Army, so he's working in a Dallas airplane plant and still is available for occasional track meets. . . . When California Jackie Wilson started fighting as a pro, Chalky Wright was his trainer. Wilson says he learned most of what he knows about fighting from Chalky and Henry Armstrong but Wright insists: "There wasn't much I could teach that guy." . . . As a big-league hockey player, Johnny Gottselig of the Blackhawks was billed as a Russian from Odessa. After he retired, someone revealed that it was Odessa, Saskatchewan. . . . Prexy Bill Veck of the Milwaukee Brewers has made a few concessions to Wisconsin winters—heavy boots, sheepskin-lined overshoes, a muffler and even a woolly cap—but he sticks to sport shirts and claims the cap is "just to wear on the farm."

Gene Pinter of the New Brunswick (N.J.) Home News passes along this story of Jim Moore and Jack Kelly, who used to be basketball teammates at St. Peter's high school. . . . Moore was the sub whose task was to relieve Kelly for a rest a couple of times each game. . . . Kelly joined the Coast Guard after leaving school and was aboard the transport Wakefield when it burned at sea. . . . He had to leap overboard and for several hours he swam around waiting for a rescue boat to come near. . . . Kelly was almost exhausted when a boat from a cruiser drew near and a sailor jumped into the water to help him.

As a pair of strong arms supported him, Kelly heard a voice ask, "Who's substituting now?" . . . Jack had just about enough breath left to reply, "Moore for Kelly."

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP)—Chief Specialist Bob Feller, of the Navy, former Cleveland pitching ace, and Miss Virginia Winther of Waukegan will be married tonight in the First Methodist church. Miss Winther accompanied Feller here yesterday from Van Meter, Iowa, where they had attended the funeral of Feller's father, William A. Feller, 66.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP)—The University of Chicago basketball team, which hasn't won a game since December 6, 1941, and has dropped 32 consecutive Big Ten conference encounters has a chance to tie a league record tonight in its game with Indiana university. The record, 33, is held by the Chicago teams of 1935-6-7-8.

Undefeated Arendtville high gained its fourth straight triumph Friday evening by crushing the Fairfield high boys on the Fairfield court 48-15.

There was never any doubt as to the outcome, Coach Smith's boys getting off to a 16-2 advantage in the first period. Pacing the winners was Baltzley who looped 15 points.

There was only one point difference from the boys' score in the girls' game, the Arendtville sextet winning 48-16. At half time Arendtville led 24-8. Miller connected for 23 points for the apple-pickers with R. Musselman tallying nine for the losers.

AMERICA'S "CITIZEN SOLDIERS" OBSERVE THRIFT WEEK

132,000,000 STRONG

Benjamin Franklin's "Maxims of Poor Richard" helped to inspire courage and self-denial in those who were fighting America's first "Survival War." They point the way to victory for us 167 years later.

As descendants of the men and women of 1776 to 1783, we are as willing as they were to give up everything we have to give up to win—but not our freedom.

Americans of 1943, 132,000,000 strong, will observe Thrift Week by saving gasoline, saving rubber, saving food and materials, saving money, and buying U. S. War bonds for Victory.
